

MANGA

The G-Pen

The most popular of the Japanese nibs. Loved by calligraphers for Spencerian / Copperplate writing. Capable of a variety of lines, from bold down to very fine. Great drawing nib! Very flexible. Many Manga cartoonists use this nib for their main drawing and for "effect" lines such as a flash line. Available in three packs from Nikko and Tachikawa; and five packs from Zebra.

Saji-Chrome

"Saji" means "spoon" and this large pen nib is similar to bowl-shaped American drawing nibs. Chrome-plated. Good for thick lines and overall general drawing. Available in three packs from Nikko and Tachikawa; and five packs from Zebra.

School Pen

The pen point on the School Pen nib is slightly softer, and the lines produced, a little bolder. Chrome-plated. Good for hard lines. Available in three packs from Nikko and Tachikawa.

Nihon-Moji

A very nice nib for comics lettering, with a flattened bowl for greater stability. "Nihon" means "Japan" and "moji" means "letter, as in a letter from the alphabet". Thus: a good lettering nib for your captions. Chrome-plated. Available in three-packs from Nikko and Tachikawa.

Maru

A smaller tube nib, similar to the crow quill nib. The Maru ("circle" or round) nib is good for drawing stable lines and for detailing. Also good for drawing details such as hair, folds of clothes, or inside of pupils. Available in two-packs from Nikko and Tachikawa; and five-packs from Zebra.

A real hit with our customers and the Wet Paint staff. This is a nice, stable wood Japanese pen holder that is unique: you can use the inner circle for the smaller Maru nib, or the outer circle for all the other Japanese points.
